

Community Development Skills Training

Being a development worker

When: 5th August 2010, 10am – 4.30pm

Where: Richard Mayo Centre, United Reformed Church

For people who are new to supporting groups, or revisiting the job after time away.

The topics covered will include how to:

- Define the difference between community and development work
- Identify the personal and professional qualities of a development worker
- Effectively communicate with groups and organisations to establish roles, responsibilities and boundaries and understand what activities a development worker would undertake with them
- Evaluate the impact of ethical dilemmas development workers may encounter in their work
- Access the support and resources available to development workers.
